The network offer

Background

The CIPFA Alternative Service Delivery Network (CASDN) supports organisations and practitioners get to grips with the shift in the role and operating landscape of public sector organisations. With continuous fiscal constraints, demographic changes and citizen's rising service expectations, public services are increasingly being delivered through new and innovative delivery models:

- · trading companies
- · limited liability partnerships
- · joint ventures, and
- public private partnerships

This is the case on both the "upstream" supply chain / supply of public services / supply of commercial services and the "downstream" supply chain where the public body is procuring from the private sector / voluntary sector / other public bodies / its own trading companies. Therefore, we see a link with the CIPFA Procurement and Commissioning Network, with whom we work closely.

What the network enables you to do

The increasing scale of commercial activity requires a major step-change in how practitioners carry out their day-to-day tasks and makes a pressing need for greater commercial and business-minded skills, governance and culture. This calls for expert guidance and support from a trusted partner like CIPFA.

It is now critical for public sector practitioners to develop new skills that allow them to generate innovative thinking, identify and implement better and more efficient ways of working compared to traditional models. All available opportunities need be unlocked that can help generate new income flows, which enable organisations to diversify and become less dependent on diminishing central government grants.

CASDN also supports new entities outside of the traditional public sector community which have been set up. We will combine our excellent public sector track record and draw upon support from leading private sector specialists to provide on-going guidance to nurture and help these organisations on their journey to become profitable. This massive transformational change is taking public sector organisations into unchartered and unfamiliar territory. Any incorrect step can lead to serious reputational and financial risks for the organisation as well as the potential to expose individuals to serious personal liability. The CASDN will help you navigate through these complexities with expert advice and support. The CASDN will consider alternative service delivery models across their lifecycle, considering set up / implementation, operations and exit / expiry. This will include drawing on well-developed thinking on PPP / PFI exit / expiry.

The CASDN will draw on long standing guidance, tools and techniques, including for example HM Treasury's business case approach which can underpin decision making, HM Treasury's joint venture guidance and best practice public private partnership (PPP) guidance. We will share historic and live case studies, including alternative service delivery models where there are lessons to learn. We will aim to explain and use a series of simple concepts in a consistent manner, including choices around "build, buy, borrow"; input, output and outcomes-based contracting; entity structures vs contractual structures – and a combination of both; choices around transform then transition (spin out) vs transition and then transform; supply chain relationships (e.g., confrontation; cooperation; collaboration; and alliancing) and the link to contractual structures.

The CASDN will involve and benefit all parts of public services and the supply chain. Also, a wide range of professions, including finance, commercial and legal as well as wider management and programme / project management. The CASDN / use of alternative service delivery models can be relevant to the full range of public services, including well established services. These alternative service delivery models are also relevant to new / developing areas of operations, for examples activities related to "Net Zero" and / or "Levelling Up". The CASDN will partner up with a range of other memberships organisation / think tanks / other commentors on alternative service delivery models to leverage the best member offer.
