The network offer

The CIPFA Benefits and Revenues Service (CBRS) was established in 1988 for the introduction of community charge and national non-domestic rates and aims to support the public sector in informing and promoting good practice in benefits and revenues services.

The two network advisors have in excess of 60 years' combined experience of working in the area of benefits and revenues which they can draw on to support practitioners in their current and future challenges.

By offering a range of valuable events as well as expert support and guidance in all aspects of benefits and revenues we ensure practitioners are aware of changes in the sector and are appropriately skilled to tackle the challenges they face.

Our E-alerts service contains updates on changes in legislation, recent case law and comments on policy and topical issues. In addition, ad-hoc notifications are issued where information needs more urgent communication. These alerts ensure practitioners are kept up to date with relevant developments.

Our website contains documentation to accompany the events along with briefing notes, newsletters and archive material, all of which is available free of charge to network subscribers.

For those with specific questions, our subscriber enquiry service is there to help. Our highly skilled and dedicated advisors can be accessed, free of charge, by subscribers to the network via email, phone or Microsoft Teams.
